It's What's
Inside That Counts

Inside the walls of every school, there is a different array of students. That means that between the covers of each different yearbook, there is a different story to be told. This book is a unique representation of the many happenings of the 1987-88 school year.

CHS's outside underwent a major change this year with the construction of a new addition, but inside, the school stayed basically the same. Academic classes take up the majority of a student's school day, but after school, extra-curricular activities still rule.

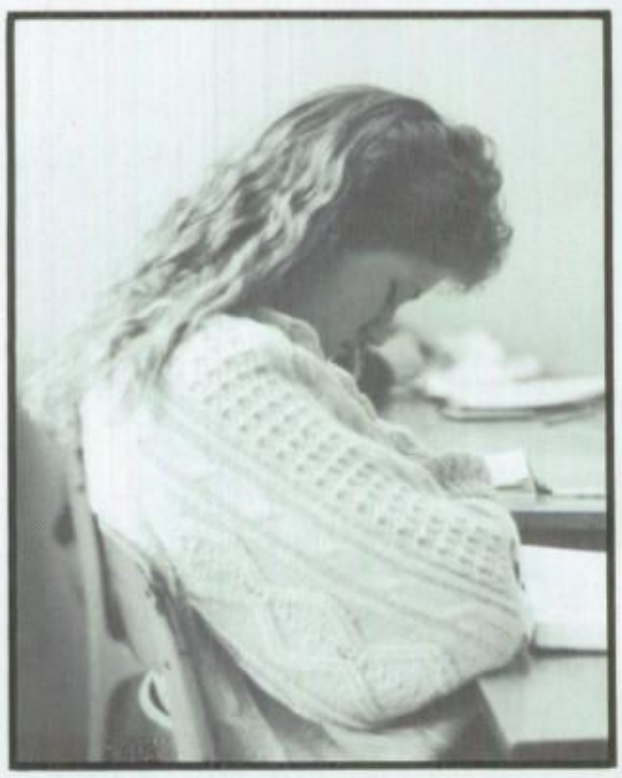
The school's organizations sponsor fundraisers throughout the year so that traditions, such as the Kayette Christmas Dance or the prom, may be continued or so that new traditions can be initiated.

Usually, though, when one thinks of extra-curricular activities, the first thing to come to mind is sports. Seventy-one of Centralia's 95 students participate in at least one sport, which explains their importance to students.

Success is a word that took on many forms this year. The Girls Basketball, Quiz Bowl, and Forensics teams all qualified for their respective state tournaments. CHS's students received their share of KSHSAA as well as individual honors.

The cheerleaders take time out from cheering to pose for a quick picture during the homecoming game. Head cheerleader Shannan Koch was on the homecoming float.

Marla Rempe manages to catch forty winks in Accounting.



The cast of the Christmas Program "Three Angels Caught in God's Love" relax together after the final dress rehearsal.

Billy Holthaus doesn't "kiss and tell" but he was caught in the act as he and Mr. Bourne pose for a Mr. Irresistible picture.

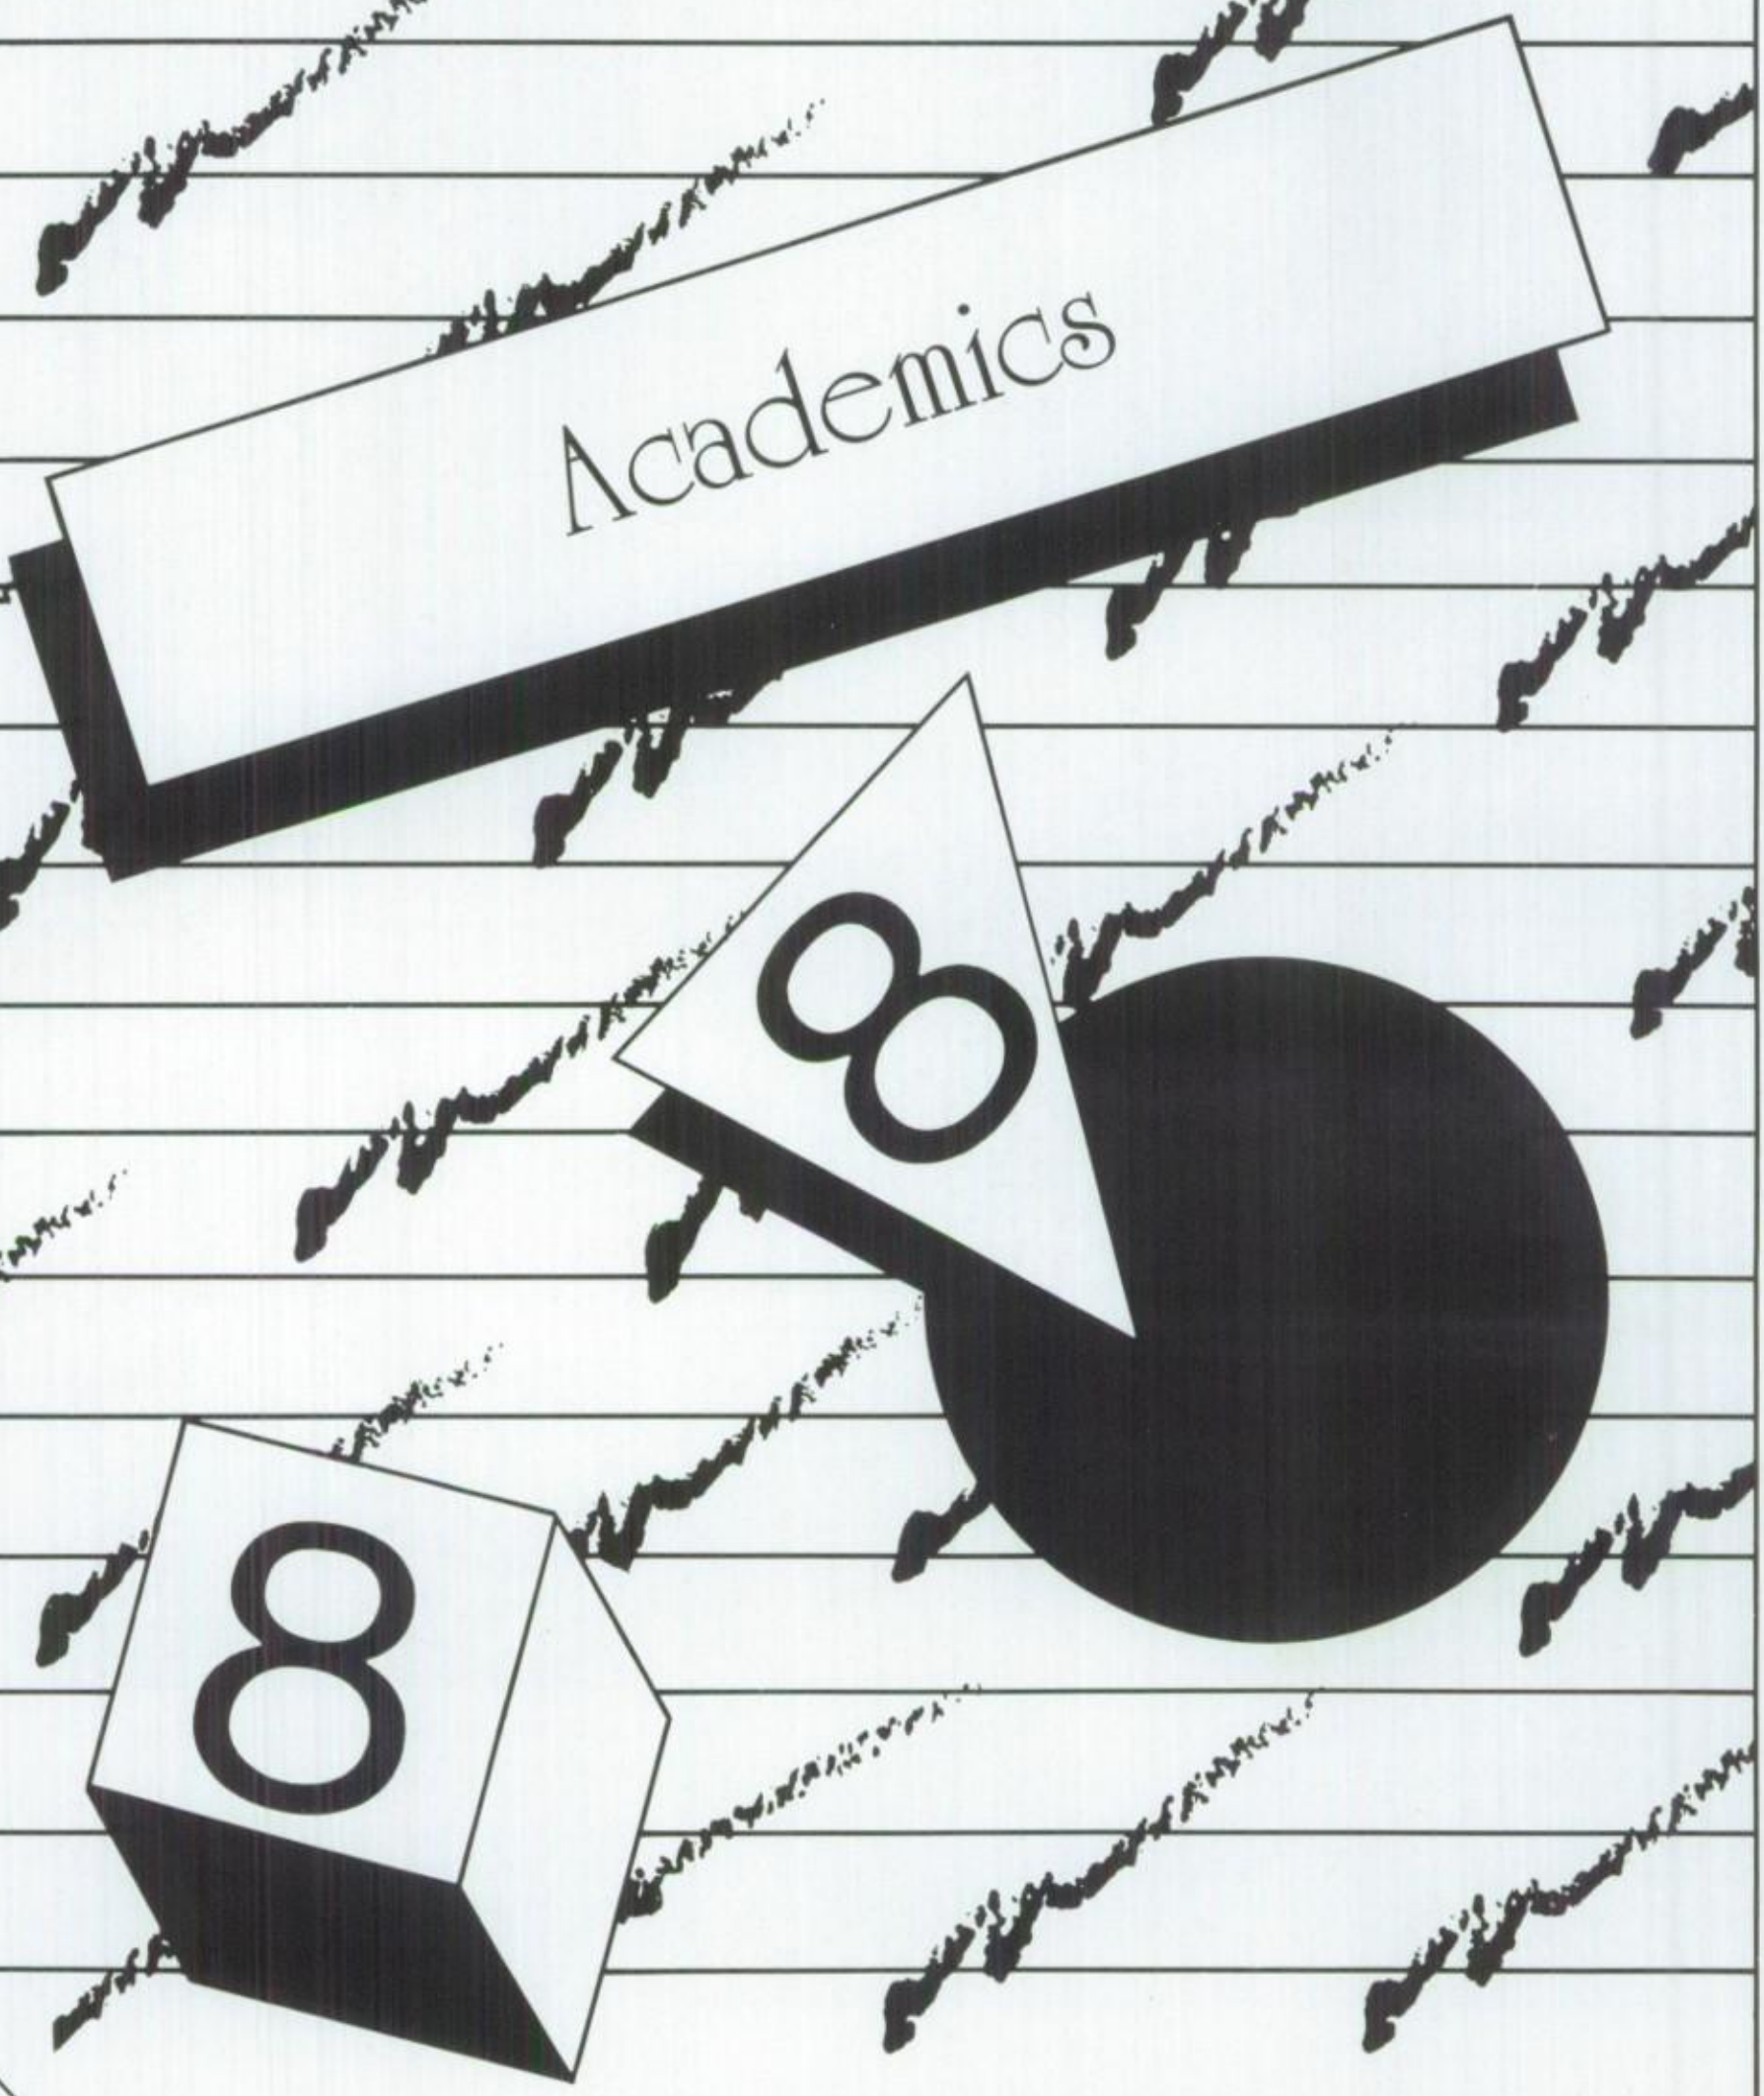
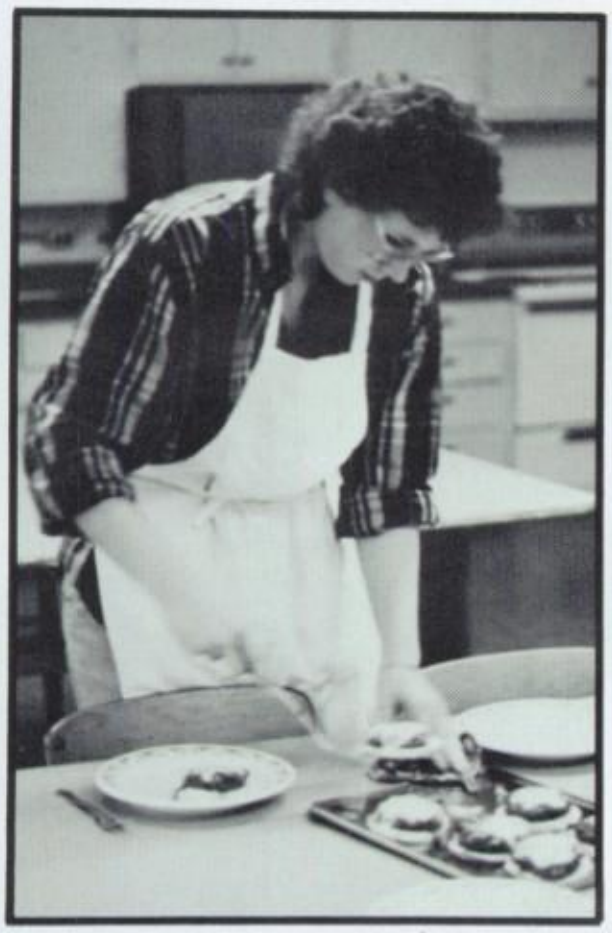
Gina Engelken, John Boeckman, and Dean Strathman aim for the mark on the National Guard Shooting Van.

Academics





Brain Drain

What is the purpose of school? Many students may answer to party, to get out of the house, or to spend time with friends. But, as the teachers will be the first to tell you, the academic classes are the main reason for school to exist.

School is also supposed to prepare students for life after high school. This year a career's class was started to help those who enrolled decide "what I want to be when I grow up".

CHS's students spend the majority of their high school careers in the classroom, not to mention the time spent doing homework, or studying for tests. Even after all of this, when they graduate, the seniors will carry with them memories of the good times they had in CHS. But, they will also take the knowledge they gained from the academic classes, and, whether these classes were a "brain drain" or not, that knowledge will last.

Terri Luck dishes up a creation of the food and nutrition class.

"It All Adds Up"

When dealing with problems of math and science, it is important to understand that everything should usually add up; unless of course it is an exception to some rule, in which case things shouldn't add up, and if they do add up, something was added wrong.

Angela, the beaker creature, cleans up another one of her numerous catastrophes.

Confusing, eh? Centralia's math and science students, however, are not confused when it comes to these subjects.

The students in science took field trips to such places as Jeffrey Energy Center and the Bloodmobile and learned from hands-on experience in science laboratories.

Math students in Algebra I and the higher level courses participated in the American High School Mathematics Examination for the first time, and George Schmitz, Amy Valigura, and Brian Deters hauled in the top three places at CHS.

The highlight of the school year in these subjects is the NVL Math-Science Contest where students put their year's worth of knowledge to the test against that of students from other league schools. Overall, Centralia didn't receive first place honors, as the school has for the past few years, but finished a close second to Frankfort. The students still put on a strong showing, taking home ten medals. Four of these went to Barb Steinlage, Nancy Winkler, Gina Engelken, and Amy Strathman, who took the gold in the team competition.

Sell Yourself

The purpose of high school is to prepare students for life after graduation. For some, college is their post-graduation destination while others head straight to work. But all of these students must someday face the job market, and in order to attain the career of his choice, a student must be able to sell himself.

The two class divisions which contribute the most to selling one's self are speech and business. The speech class, taught by Martha Biggs, is the source of the instruction needed in order to put forth an experienced, reliable image. From simple skits to the all-school play to forensics competitions, a speech student gains much in the knowledge of oral, as well as written communication.

Business classes include typing, office practice, shorthand, general business, and accounting. These classes are instructed by June Spacek in the Centralia school system. "Business" means selling, and the object to be sold is one's self, but the worker must have good skills to succeed. Office work may not be the most desireable to some people, but it is often times a means to the end result. Businesses many times hire from within. Someone hired as a secretary or a clerk may eventually move "up the ladder" and become an officer of the business.

Reading Between The Lines

The two subjects required most for high school graduation are English and the social sciences. English is required for four years and the social sciences for three, but these subjects do have one thing in common. They both involve volumes of reading.

This is why the ability to comprehend what one reads is so important. "It's the whole basis to all education," stated English instructor Mrs. Joyce DeBord. It's also extremely important around dance time so those without dates can tell who I've set them up with."

The social sciences take a little more than just reading comprehension. As the word "social" implies, these sciences are the study of people and their relationship to the world. To understand people, one must look between the lines.

"Since we live in a democracy, people must be responsible," commented Mr. Rich Tynon, "and to make responsible decisions, they must understand government, history, economics, geography, or the world we live in."

Barb Steinlage, Tara Ballew, and Mike Stallbaumer read over Julius Caesar for English II.

Jeff Kramer tries to smile and listen to Mr. Wallisch at the same time.

Jennie Bradstreet takes her notes seriously in English III.

Brenda Durland and Terry Torrey always enjoy themselves in English IV.

Hands-On Experience

Working with one's hands can provide a creative release and is also an excellent tool for learning. What better way to learn, than by hands-on experience?

"Learning is facilitated to the fullest by learning and experiencing," commented Vo Ag Instructor Maurice Waite, "or by first learning, then applying what you've learned."

All-told, classroom and lecture time still proves to be a valuable means of education. But, when students put the sometimes abstract ideas of the classroom to the test of the practical applications of the workroom, they come to life. Students reap the rewards of their efforts by sampling their own cooking or sewing in Home Ec. and taking home projects in the vocational classes.

Physical education students test out their abilities on various types of sports. Students have the opportunity to compare their physical powers with that of other students in the nation by taking part in the Presidential fitness Program.

Creative energy can be spent in art. Students use their own hands to model clay or make their visions come to life on canvas. "Ideally, art develops creativity," stated Carl Brothers, "but the highly creative people develop the creative skills they already have, and the not so creative people find creativity in themselves that they didn't know existed."

The Roar Of The Crowd

Nothing is more gratifying to a performer in any field than the appreciation and applause of an audience. But the audience doesn't see what goes on behind the scenes.

Hours of preparation are put in before any production, whether it be vocal, instrumental, or dramatic. "A major concert takes about 30 practices," said band instructor John Brazell, "or 30 hours of work."

Aside from the time spent during school, students also put in some effort outside of school. Difficult passages of music must be practiced to perfection. Students memorize lines on their own time so that blocking and stage movement can become second nature.

"Memorizing lines, understanding motivation, blocking, and learning cues take time," commented speech and English teacher Martha Biggs, "But when the house lights go off and you enter the stage not as a students at CHS, but as a totally different person, the rewards are immediate. The applause is only the icing on the cake."

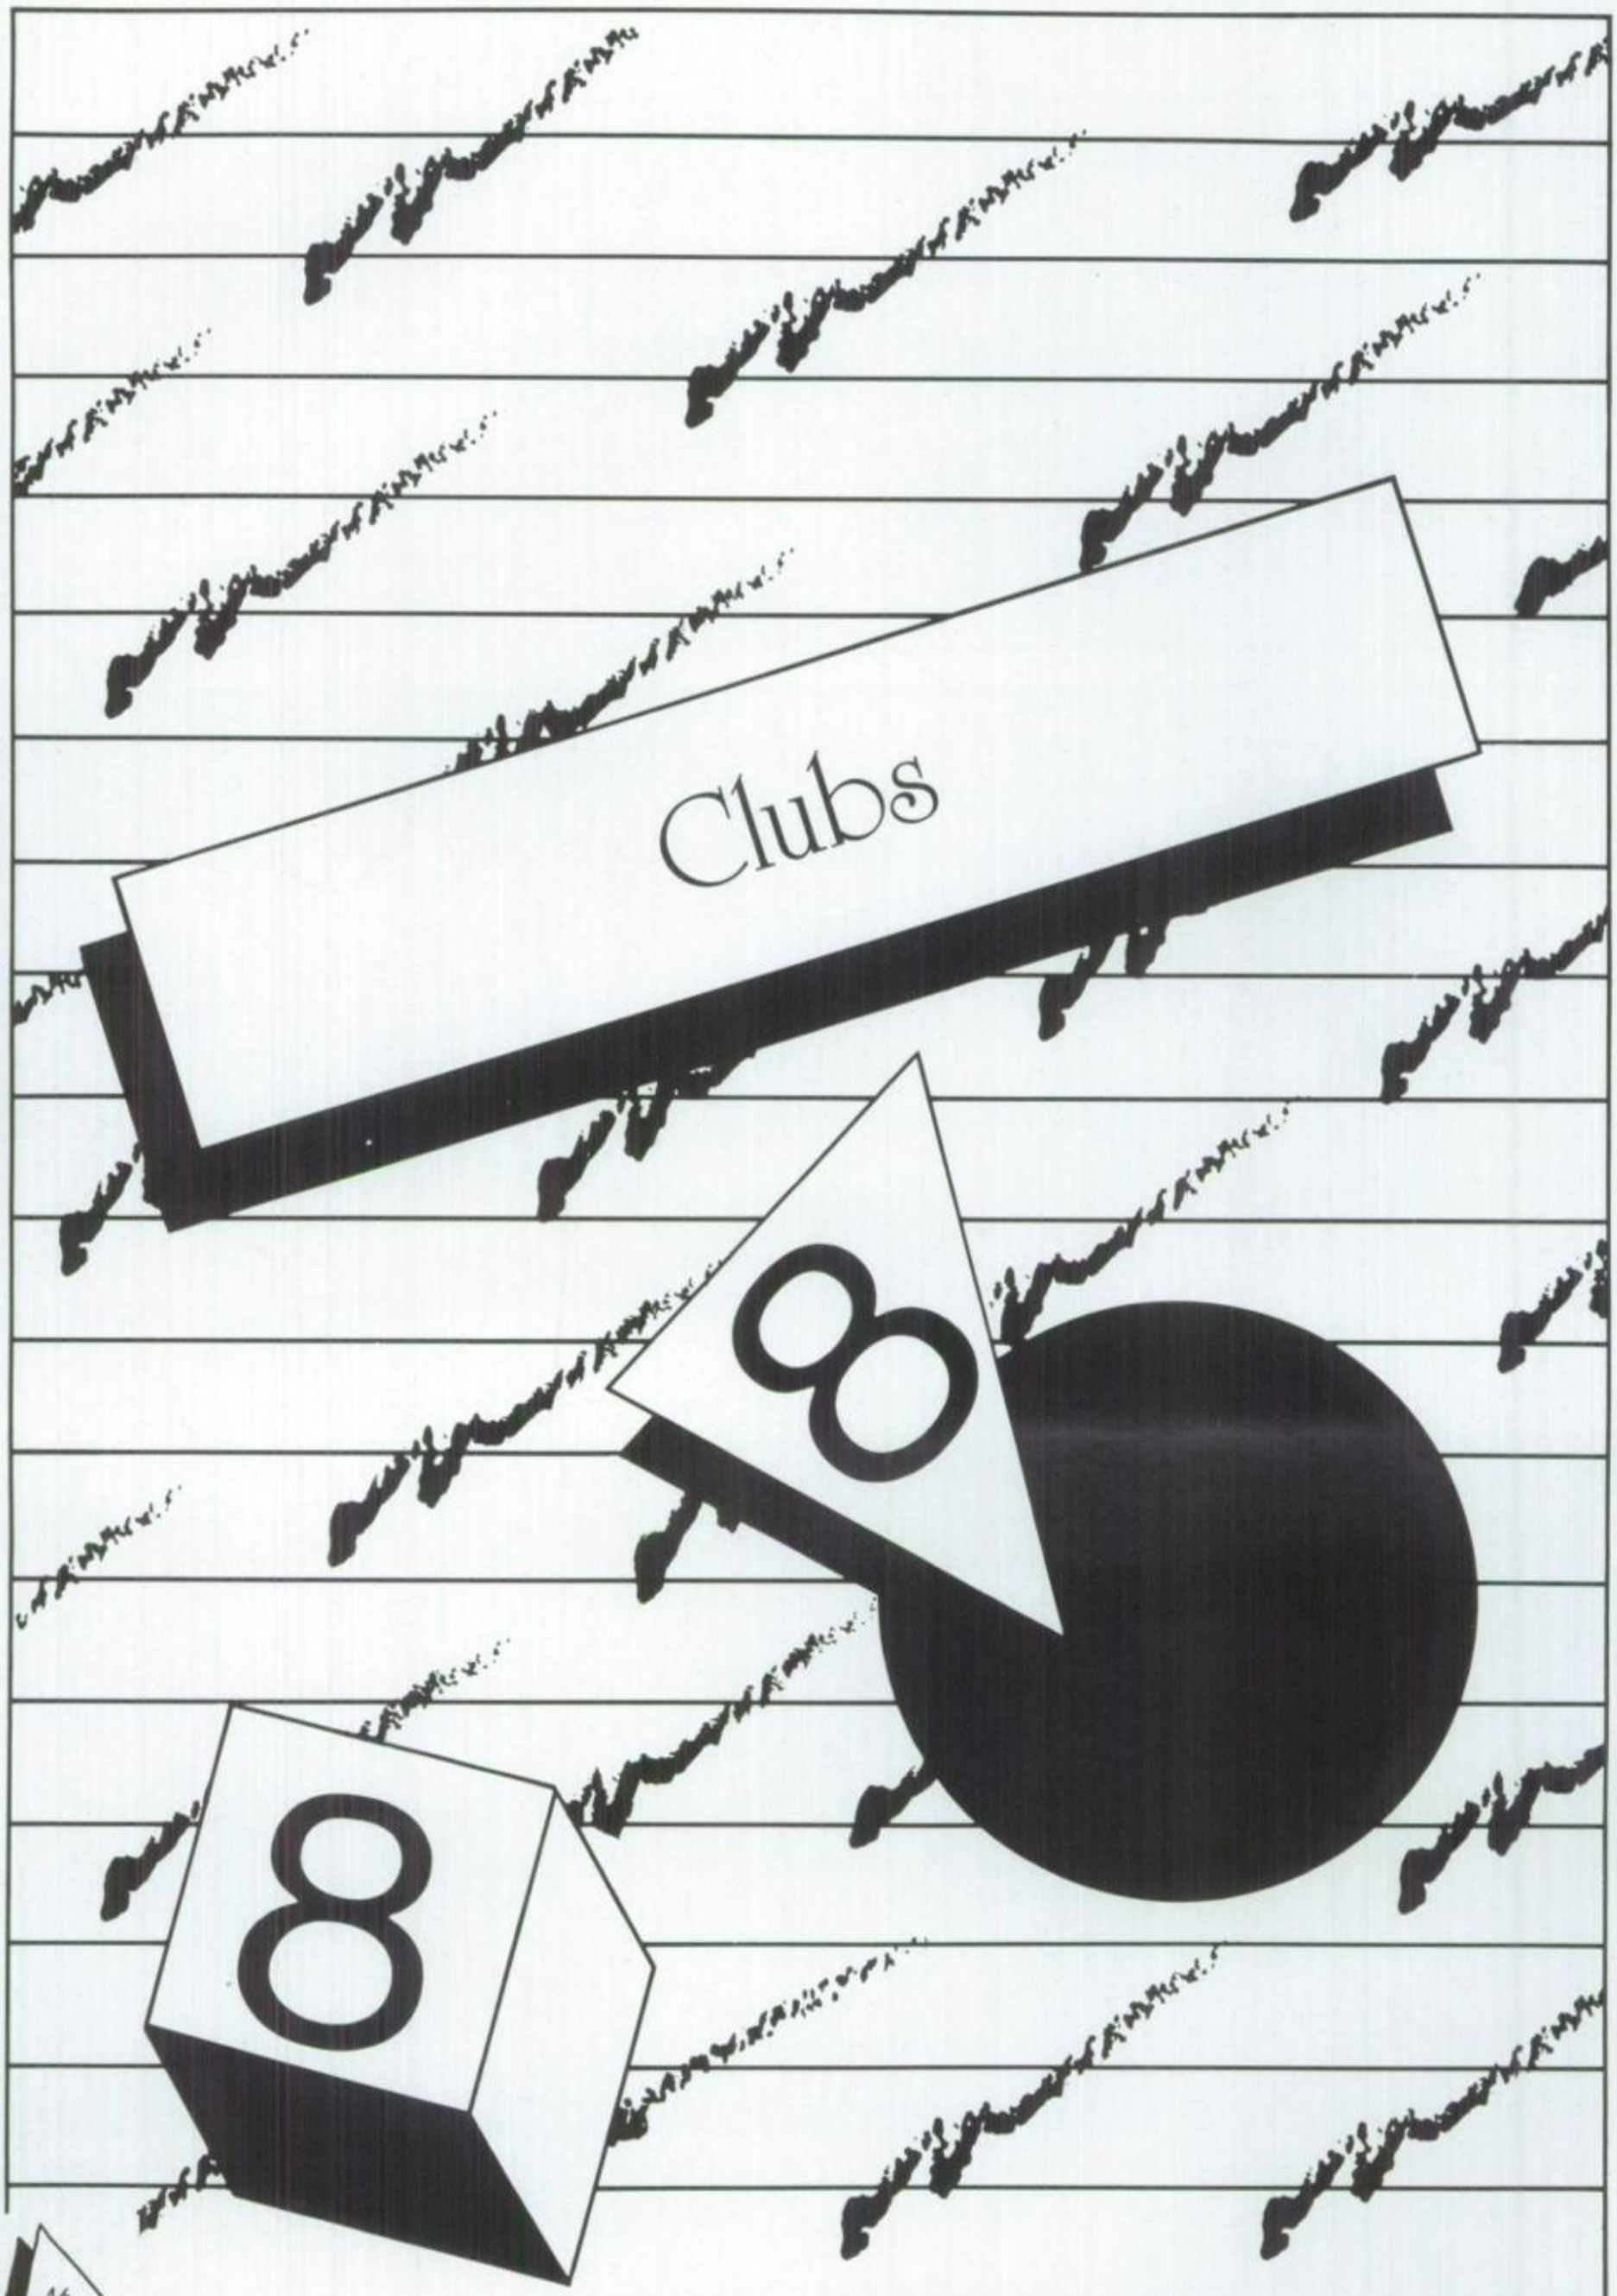
Clubs



This Club's For You

There are eight organizations in CHS, and 95 percent of the students belong to at least one of them. These clubs' activities add excitement to the run-of-the-mill schedule of daily school life.

Each organization sponsors fund-raisers to help pay for the special events, whether they be a pizza party, a field trip, or a dance, that take place for the enjoyment of its members.

But these clubs don't serve just their membership. They play a vital role in both school and community activities by sponsoring charities or working with school and community leaders.

Go For The Gold

"Go For the Gold." Are we talking about the Olympics, or possibly a marathon? No, it's the Centralia High School cross country team coached by John Brazell.

On October 31, the team attended regionals at Riley County. Although it was a cold, rainy day with poor running conditions, the team ran well and received 2nd place.

The state competition was held at Wamego on November 7. Resulting from the rains of the previous week, the course was muddy, and the weather was cool. Butch Copeland, junior, and Corey Griffiths, senior, led the Panthers, finishing 16th and 25th. Karen Rempe, freshman, was the only Lady Panther who braved the elements at the state meet, and she finished 47th. Coach Brazell felt that the team did not run as well at state as at the regional meet. When the scores were tallied, the group received 6th as a team.

A Disappointing Season

Though they started out the season with high hopes, the Panther Football Team ended their season with a general feeling of disappointment.

"The season was a roller coaster ride," said Coach Jim Smith. "Some games the kids played super, and other weeks it seemed they forgot to show up."

The season did have its shining moments. Centralia played two close games against Clifton-Clyde and Washington, though the Clyde score didn't show it. The Panthers scored two touchdowns that were called back, to leave the final at 14-0 in favor of the Eagles.

The Panthers have a tough schedule to contend, with many opposing teams ranked and playoff bound.

"Nobody goes out to lose," stated Smith. "We were outmatched. With our size compared to other teams, we just couldn't truly match up."

Five Panthers earned All-League honors. They are: Andy Deters, First Team Defensive End, Honorable Mention Offensive End; Corey Griffiths, Second Team Wide Receiver, Honorable Mention Corner Back; Billy Holthaus, Honorable Mention Linebacker, Honorable Mention Running Back; John Johnson, Honorable Mention Linebacker; and Dan Renne, Honorable Mention Defensive Tackle. .

A Dissatisfying Season

The 1987 volleyball season began August 20 with the first dayof practice. For many it was the start of the struggle to get back in shape after the long summer vacation. But, as Coach Tynon said, "You walk in church and school. You run in practice." So run they did.

The Lady Panthers' season started well, as they split with Wetmore in their first matches of the season. They then had a disappointing Centralia Invitational with the JV and varsity finishing third overall. The Panthers proceeded to do well in league play and had a league record of 7-5 going into the NVL Tournament held at Axtell.

The Panthers defeated B & B in the first round of the tourney but lost tough to homestanding Axtell in the second round and to Wetmore in the third round to finish fourth in the tournament.

At the 1A Regional, held at Baileyville, the Panthers were hardpressed to get a serve over the net, a problem that had plagued them all year, and lost to B & B in two games. They finished the season with a record of 9-11.

The JV did not have a successful season, finishing with a record of 1-6.

Three of the Lady Panthers received All-League honors. They were Marla Rempe, Second Team Setter; Amy Strathman, Honorable Mention: and Barb Steinlage, Honorable Mention.

The "Almost" Season

"The 1987-88 boys' basketball season can best be described as the season that 'almost' was," said Coach Cy Wallisch. With three returning starters from the previous year, many expected greater things for this Panther team.

With a 10-11 win-loss record, the boys had nothing to be ashamed of. Many games were decided as the last few moments ticked off of the clock, and usually ended to the Panthers' disadvantage.

The Panthers began league tournament action with a victory over the Wetmore Cardinals. After next receiving a defeat from the B & B Falcons, the team went on to win over Onaga to receive third place.

As the season rolled to a close, the Panthers once again defeated Wetmore in the first round of regional play. The road to sub-state soon came to a halt however. The Falcons prevailed once again, handing the Panthers their last loss of the season, 54-59.

Hard Work Pays Off

As the 1987-88 basketball season got underway, few people expected the girls' team to accomplish what they did. However, through much hard work and dedication, they were able to advance through regionals, sub-state, and finally on to the state tournament.

This year's team consisted of seven seniors, three juniors, and seven sophomores. Though they started off slowly, the Nemaha Valley League tournament showed them their way to third place. The Lady Panthers went in to regionals with three consecutive losses. Once again, however, the girls fought for their stand and progressed to finals. Here they faced N.V.L. champs, the Axtell Eagles. The championship game proved to be as thrilling as was anticipated. The Panthers pounced on the Eagles, topping them by only one point. The group then advanced on to sub-state action at Concordia. In the first round, Centralia won easily over Westmoreland. The sub-state championship was also acquired as the Panthers outscored the Linn Bulldogs, 49-33.

On March 9, the team traveled to Hays to participate in the 1A state tournament. Although the fought hard, the Lady Panthers were defeated by Burrton Cougars, 56-46. Centralia High did not come home empty-handed however, for they received a state certificated for sportsmanship.

All-League honors included: Marla Rempe, Honorable Mention; Barb Steinlage, 2nd team; and Rosemary Haverkamp, 1st team. Rosemary also received a position on the third team All-State.

The junior varsity team had difficulties this year, finishing 5-6. Beyond the looks of the record, the girls lost several by just a few points and gained much valuable experience. The freshman team did well, finishing with twelve wins and only three losses.

"Running In The Rays"

The Centralia boys' track team consisted of fourteen members. With Jim Smith and Maurice Waite as their coaches, new records were set by Corey Griffiths in triple jump, and by Aaron Duryea, Dan Renne, Brian Deters, and Jason Vernon in the weight men's relay. For the size of the squad, the team has placed well in all of the meets. They have received second at Bern, third at B&B, fourth at Frankfort and Marysville, and seventh at Centralia. The year has been enjoyed by the runners with personal bests being broken and the possibility of going to the state meet.

"We were down on numbers a lot this past season. That has hurt the team; however, we have had a group of fine young people who have given all they had at every meet," said Coach Melvin "Sonny" Bourne of the girls' track team. This year's team consisted of one senior, three sophomores, and five freshmen. The school javelin record has wavered between Shelli Holthaus and Pam Boeckman. At this writing, Pam Boeckman holds the record at 82'2". Renee Becker has established two new school records in the high hurdles with the time of 15.28 and in the 300 meter low hurdles with the time of 48.20.

With her high hurdle time, Renee is ranked fourth overall in the state.

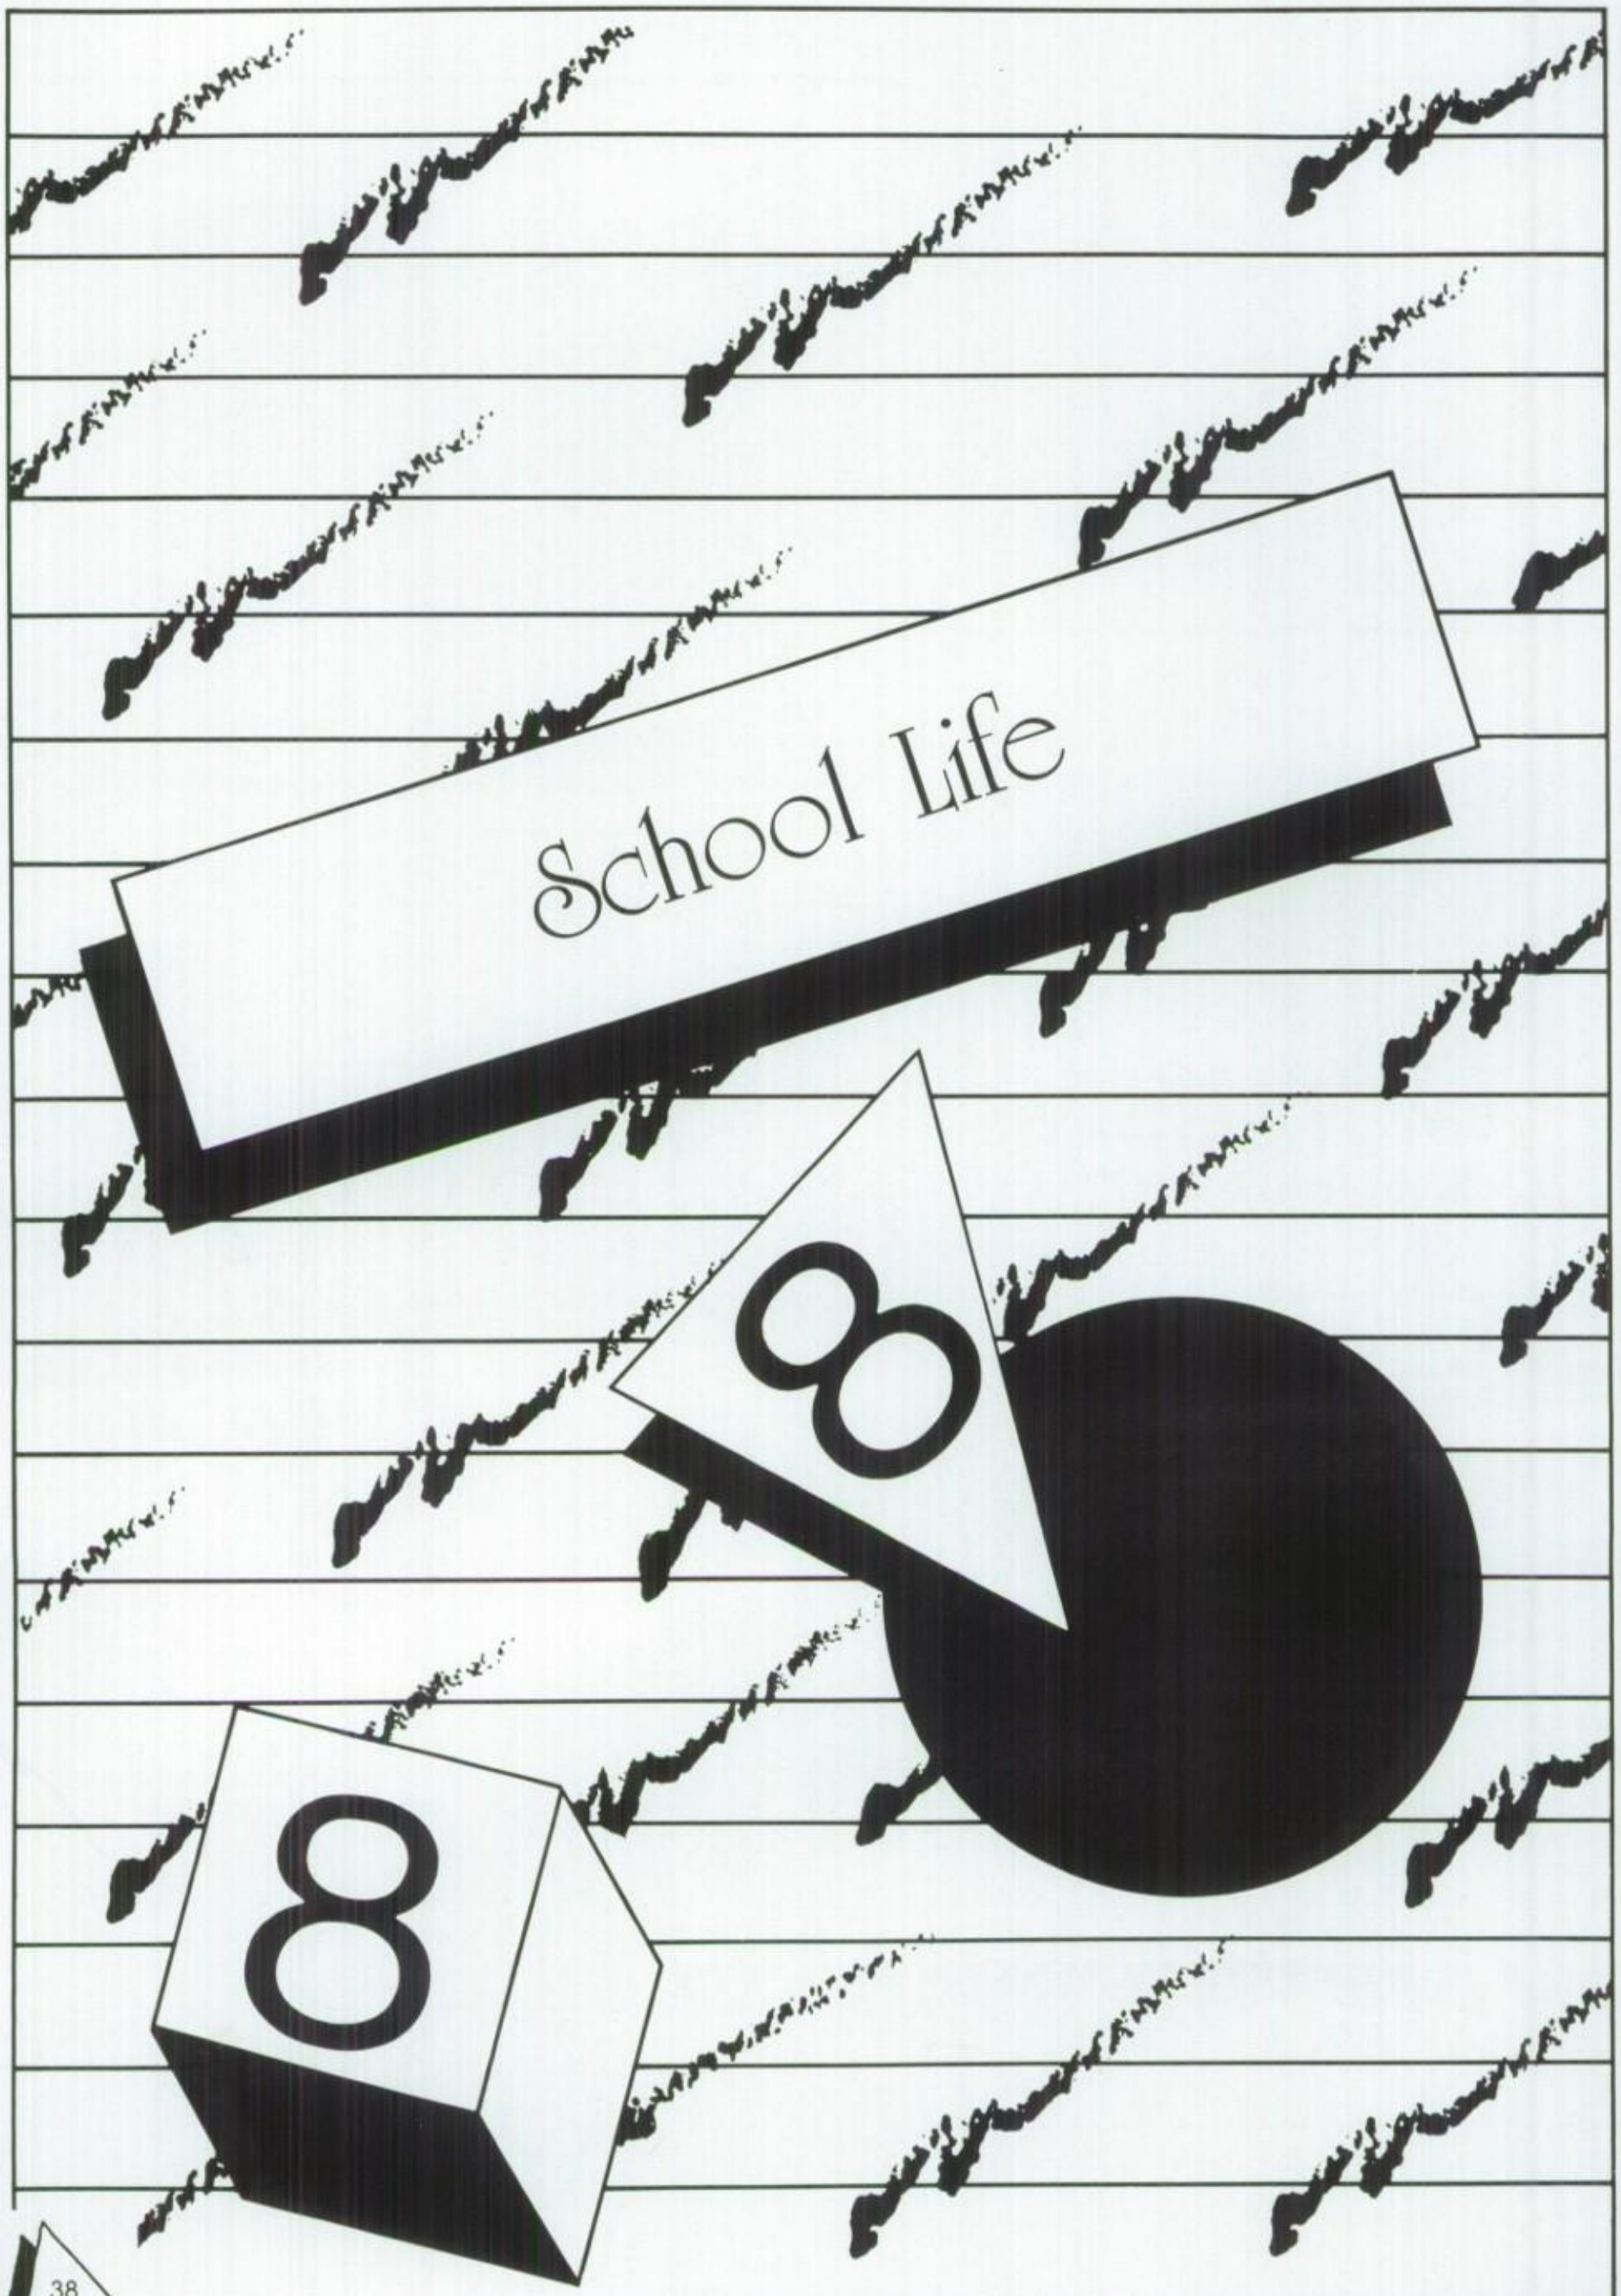
School Life



Isn't that Special?

No one likes to be "all dressed up with no place to go". Students at Centralia can't make such a statement, however. They can go to school.

Special events are the highlights of school life at CHS. Extracurricular activities remove students from the day-to-day routine, and, if nothing else, give them a few topics for hallway conversation.

School traditions such as Spirit Week, Homecoming, the all-school play, and prom provide an opportunity for students to dress up and step out into the spotlight. After, of course, all the hard work, planning, and decorations are complete. But, when all is said and done, and the hours of preparation are their own reward, all one can say is, "Isn't that special?"

Ice Castles

Kayette Christmas Dance

The annual Kayette Christmas dance, held December 5, was again a hit this year as it has been in the past. To get the school out of the "blahs" and into some holiday cheer, the Kayettes donated their very little spare time to give the school some "flair" for the upcoming holidays. The Kayettes decorated doors and transformed the activity room into a wonderland of "Ice Castles". Along with all the excitement, Mrs. DeBord's dating agency was well in demand. Entertainment for the dance was provided by the D.J., Brad Holliday, who kept the holiday cheer in the air.

FFA Sweetheart Dance
"Is This Love"

The FFA Sweetheart Dance held February 13th was the culmination of a two-week contest for a junior girl to be crowned the 1988 FFA Sweetheart. This honor went to Nancy Winkler.

Candidates had to perform certain shop skills and have knowledge about FFA history. From this, three candidates were selected to give a speech about FFA. The candidates were then voted on by the FFA officers.

The evening was very successful and enjoyed by all.

Play-Another Hit

The Madwoman of Chaillot was the title of CHS's all school play performed on April 8 and 9 at 7:30 P.M. The play was directed by Martha Biggs and Carl Brothers.

The play centered around a cafe in Paris, France, where a group of people plot to get rich by destroying Paris to drill for oil. A member of this group, the prospector, blackmails a young gentleman named Pierre to force him to set off a bomb. Instead, Pierre attempts suicide, but he is rescued by a policeman who takes him to the cafe where he falls in love with Irma, a young waitress, at first sight.

When the owner of the cafe, the madwoman of Chaillot, discovers the plot to destroy the city, she calls on her three friends Madame Constance, Madame Josephine, and Mademoiselle Gabrielle, as well as a band of vagabonds to help her destroy the evil people.

"Must you talk sex in front of Gabrielle?" scolds Constance, portrayed by Shannon Koch, as she keeps Gina Engelken's ears from evil.

The prospector, portrayed by Andy Deters, tells his cohorts in the cafe how he plans to destroy Chaillot.

Dr. Jadin, portrayed by Nancy Winkler, keeps her office open for business.

The four madwomen, portrayed by Marla Rempe, Shannan Koch, Gina Engelken, and Amy Strathman, exclaim over Pierre's discovery of the long-lost feather boa.

Prom 1988 . . .
"This Could Be The Night"

Simply stated, "This Could Be the Night", the prom theme for 1988, summarizes the atmosphere provided by the evening. Sponsored by Joan Buessing, the junior class strived for that "just right" feeling that all would like to acquire on prom night.

Prior to the dance, all were able to attend a banquet in the activity room at which the senior class wills were read. Upon entering the gym through a "tunnel of love", the dates viewed a wonderland of pink, maroon, and silver. On stage, "Myth", the band for the evening, was surrounded by walls of gray stone. Beside the stage was found a wishing well into which secret fantasies could be tossed. A crescent moon with an adorning rose hung behind the well to complete the setting for pictures. The servers' table was situated in the center of the gym inside a draped platform. Continuing along a glittered path, one came upon a silver crescent moon which was highlighted by small lights.

At intermission, the senior class prophecy was read by Mrs. Joan Buessing. The microphone was then handed over to Principal Dave Zumbahlen for the announcement of All-Around Girl and Boy. The honored couple, Marla Rempe and Billy Holthaus, next danced to the theme song. The dance resumed as "Myth" took over once again.

Concluding at 11:00 the 1988 prom was labeled a "success" by all who attended. A non-alcoholic after-prom party was held at the Rec Center following the dance. Gambling tables, rollerskates, and a raquetball court were among the activities available to the participants. Several drawings were held throughout the night for gifts and prizes donated by the community. The finale of the party was the drawing for the more expensive prizes.

New Addition Is Built

During the first semester of the 1987-88 school year, the Centralia school building went through a major transformation with the construction of a new addition.

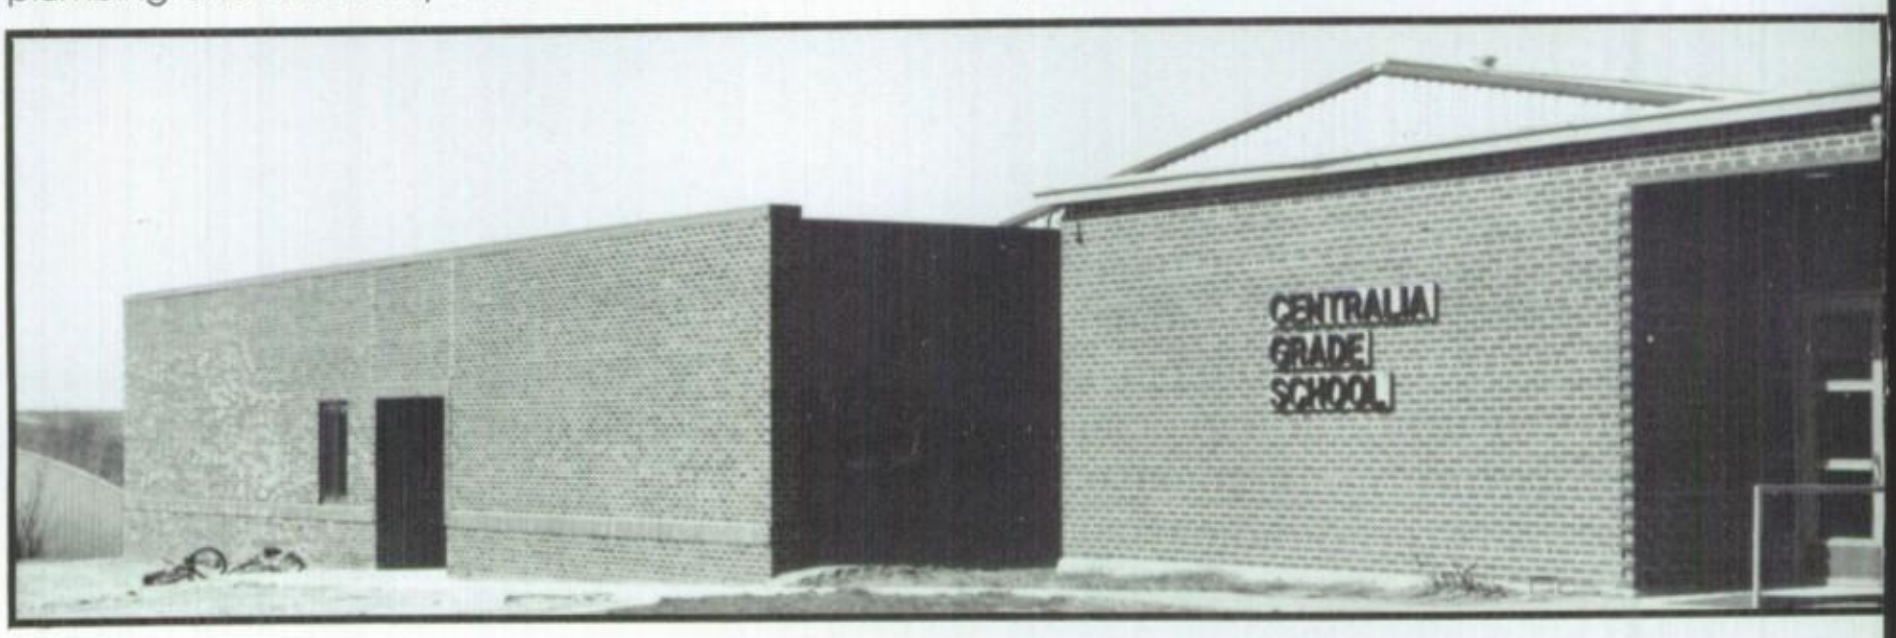
Preliminary construction plans by architects of Wilson and Company of Salina were begun in April of 1987. After opening bids were received, Oetinger and Lloyd of Clay Center was awarded the contract. "Ground-breaking" occurred in mid-August. As results in all construction, several months of disarray began for the Centralia school system.

Upon completing the general construction of the addition, plumbing and electricity were installed. Interior decorating became the next item on the agenda as walls were painted and ceiling tile was chosen. Wall units were delivered to provide storage space for the addition's rooms.

Include in the construction were four elementary classrooms, a music room, restrooms, and a concession stand. The former stand in the gym was torn down to provide more seating capacity for spectators. The existing restrooms found in the gym will eventually become a weight room for the athletes. The construction of the new addition will also allow the library to be expanded.

Classes were able to move in to the addition in late February, 1988. The total cost of construction was around $296,000, which was paid for by the Capital Outlay Funds of U.S.D. 380.

"The new addition has helped solve a lot of our space problems," said Principal Dave Zumbahlen. "Those benefiting directly were, of course, the lower elementary grades and music classes. Indirectly, the special education program and eighth grade were affected as well, for they were able to move into the former classrooms of those now in the new addition."



The new addition is found south of the pre-existing grade school building.

The first graders take a break from moving to enjoy the new facilities.

Sixth graders Corey Hermesch and Ken Steinfort transport a file cabinet to the new addition.

One real change at CHS involved the lunches. This is the first full year students are given use of a salad bar.

Drop In Enrollment Forces

CHS Down To 1A

Many changes occurred at Centralia High School during the 1987-88 school year: new addition, new classes, and class change. Of all the changes, however, the class change from 2A to 1A seemed to have the greatest effect on all.

The reason for this change was a large decrease in enrollment. Principal Dave Zumbahlen has been here since 1983 when there were 120 students in high school. this year, 1987-88, there are only 95 students. Zumbahlen predicts that Centralia will remain a 1A school for the next several years, or at least until the bigger classes in the younger grades reach high school.

The class change will probably have the most impact on athletics. Athletic Director Cy Wallisch feels that the drop to 1A might help C.H.S. to remain more competitive for a longer period of time. Girls' basketball and track coach Melvin "Sonny" Bourne feels that the class change will be of little importance to the system. "It has very little effect upon a win-loss record because 2A and 1A competition are very close in consistency."

Peculiar Panther Pride

During the week of October 19-23, the halls of Centralia High were filled with students donned in attire that many would think of as mighty peculiar. These spirit-raisers were getting psyched up for the Homecoming game against the B & B Falcons.

Inside Out/Backwards Day started off the week. Freshman Shelli Holthaus was picked as the "best dressed". Tuesday was characterized by many punk rockers as it was Heavy Metal Day. Trisha Holthaus, junior, was "punked up" the most. Many clowns, as well as our favorite fat lady, Monica Deters, senior, were seen on Wednesday when Circus Day was the theme. Jams and Jerseys were worn on Thursday. Corey Griffiths, senior, was the winner as he wore a volleyball uniform. Friday was the traditional Orange Day. Tricia Chadwick, senior, wore the top "get up" for the day.

Friday afternoon, all walked downtown for a spirit parade and pep rally. The senior class received first place with their float "Flush the Falcons". The freshmen, sophomore, and junior classes also decorated floats for the Homecoming parade.

"In My Dreams"

Panther Royalty Crowned

At 7:05 P.M., October 23, the 1987 Homecoming festivities were winding down to the big moment.

The queen candidates Tricia Chadwick, Shannan Koch, and Marla Rempe were driven around the football field in Mark Stallbaumer's convertible. As the king candidates, Andy Deters, Corey Griffiths, and Billy Holthaus escorted the queen candidates from the car, Mr. Bourne read each of their accomplishments.

Then came the moment of truth. Flower girl Robin Deters and crown bearer Dustin Walters walked onto the field as Mr. Bourne announced the 1987 Homecoming King to be Billy Holthaus and the Homecoming Queen to be Marla Rempe.

The game wasn't much to celebrate as the Panthers lost 42-6, but the crowd was enthusiastic at the dance that followed.

A mass of orange tacklers surround this Falcon ball carrier as the Panther's stop a B & B drive.

The 1986 Homecoming King Dean Cape returned to enjoy the 1987 Homecoming festivities as Pam Boeckman's date.

The dance floor was almost always full for a slow dance, and this one was no exception.

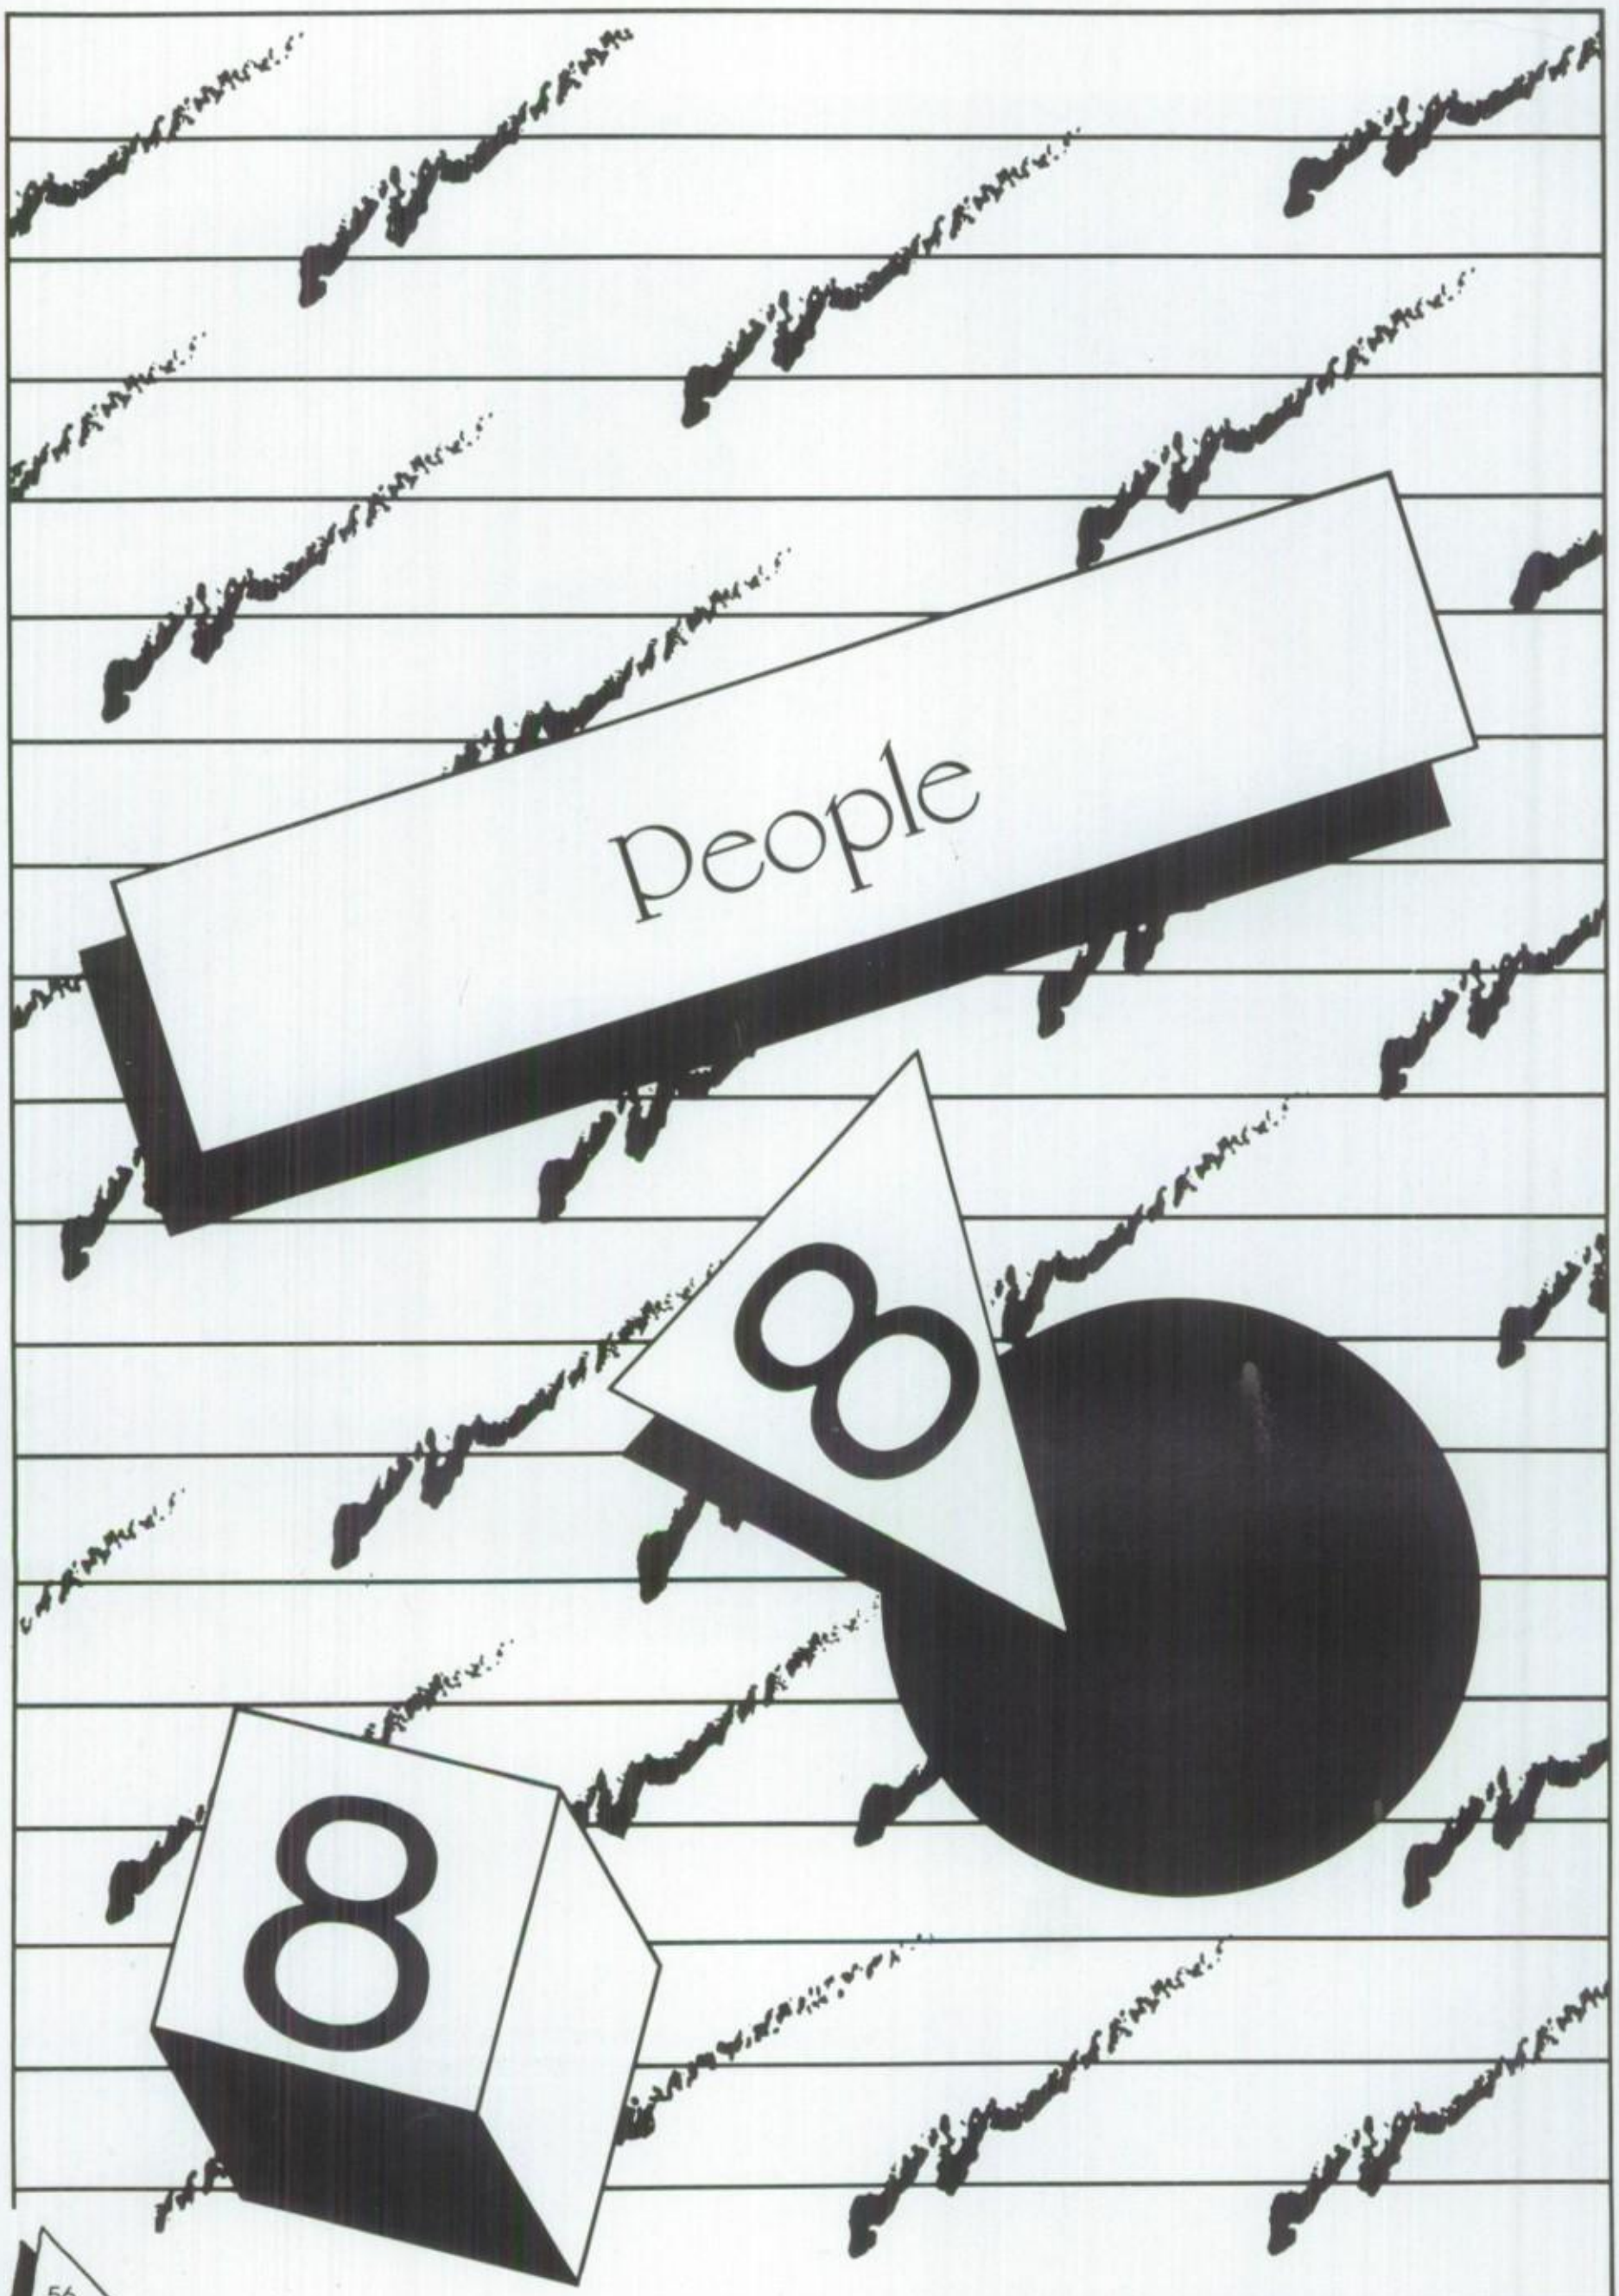
People



We The People

"We the Students of Centralia High, in order to survive these 180 days of school, do ordain that we will try to get out of class, drive the teachers crazy, and avoid any form of homework; therefore, we establish this Constitution."

No, CHS does not have a constitution, but if it did, it would surely read like the one above. The U.S. Constitution celebrated its 200th birthday this year, and though it went unnoticed, CHS will be 119 years old this year.

The 95 students who attend CHS are all unique. From studs to stubs, athletes to the "road crew", "going steady" to not dating at all, the students of CHS make it what it is, and they are what makes 1988 different from all the other years.

Juniors Await Seniority

As the 1987-88 juniors entered CHS in early fall, the class had the newly found satisfaction of being "upperclassmen". The newness soon wore off, however, as the daily routine of school and its extracurricular activities set in.

In addition to participating in sports and being members of clubs, the juniors inherited the undertaking of the concession stand. In order to earn money for prom, this, as well as the selling of magazines, was the object of the class's dedication for several months.

As each made use of his or her originality and imagination, preliminary plans for prom were made. Having the date set and orders and reservations made, only a short time lapse separated the juniors from their many hours of work. On Sunday, April 15, the class began to transform the old gym from "just a basketball court" to the desired atmosphere for prom night. Through the remaining part of the week, final preparations were made as the "big night" rapidly approached.

Another major hurdle of their education was crossed as many members of the junior class tested their knowledge by taking the ACTs on April 14. Knowing that their future could be affected by the results, several of the relieved test-takers made it an unforgettable day with their own added excitement.

Stepping Ahead

After surviving the agony of their Freshman year, the class of 1990 moved progressively ahead into the 1987-88 school year.

The class started money making projects to build their treasury for the prom. The sale of holly and spaghetti supper tickets brought out the true salesperson in all.

The sophomores not only worked hard to make money, they put forth their efforts in academics, athletics, and other activities as well. Athletes saw action on the junior varsity level, and some on varsity. After learning the ropes of the high school routine, more responsibility was taken in clubs and activities.

By the end of their second high school year, a sense of achievement was felt, as the class of 1990 was better prepared for their two future high school years.

Freshmen Survive

Entering high school as a freshman is both a frightening and an exhilarating moment. The freshmen of the 1987-88 school year had very little difficulty adjusting they soon became involved in school activities, such as sports, clubs, and the "always present" fundraisers. Cake raffles and car washes were held in order to open the class treasury.

The usual initiation took place as many experienced "getting dumped" as a freshman. High school games, dances, and other activities soon caught the interest of all. These seniors of 1991 can look back on their freshman year as one of new experiences and a lot of fun.

Graduation Marks

A New Beginning

At 7:00 P.M., May 15, 1988, as the CHS band played the traditional "Pom and Circumstance", the 27 members of the 1988 graduating class were about to reach a milestone in their lives by receiving the diplomas that marked their high school graduation.

Reverend Warren Hett gave the invocation. Then two musical selections were sung by the vocal music class, one a solo by Kerri Russell, "That's What Friends Are For", and the other entitled "One By One" by the vocal class.

The three valedictorians Monica Deters, Gina Engelken, and Shannan Koch gave a joint student address. They also received plaques for their honor.

Dr. Jerry Horn from Kansas State University was the keynote speaker. He spoke to the seniors on the qualities that he felt were necessary for them to be successful.

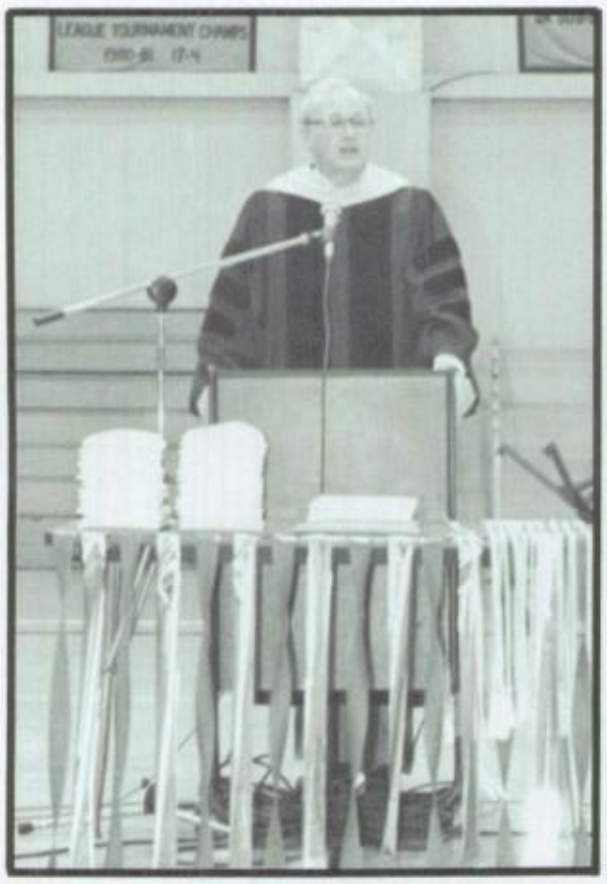
Mr. Zumbahlen and Mrs. Ruest announced the award and scholarship recipients and made their presentations.

Kent Stowell then presented each graduate with his or her diploma. Benediction was given by Reverend Warren Hett, and the seniors made the recessional.

After the ceremony, the seniors lined up in front of school to receive congratulations.

Valedictorians Monica Deters, Gina Engelken, and Shannan Koch gave a joint address.

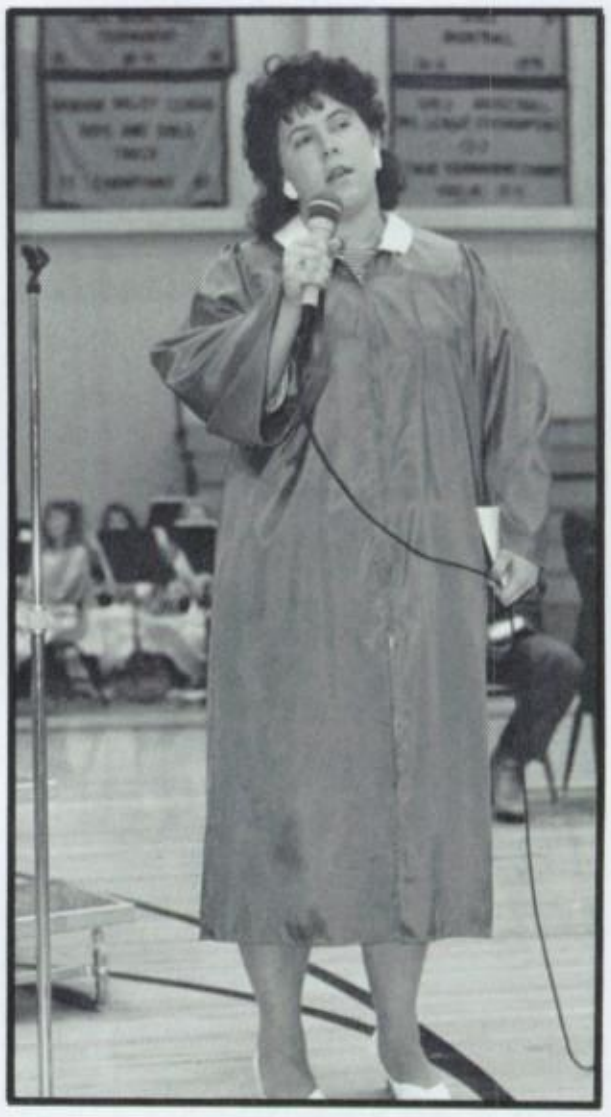
Dr. Jerry Horn speaks to the graduates of the attributes necessary for success.



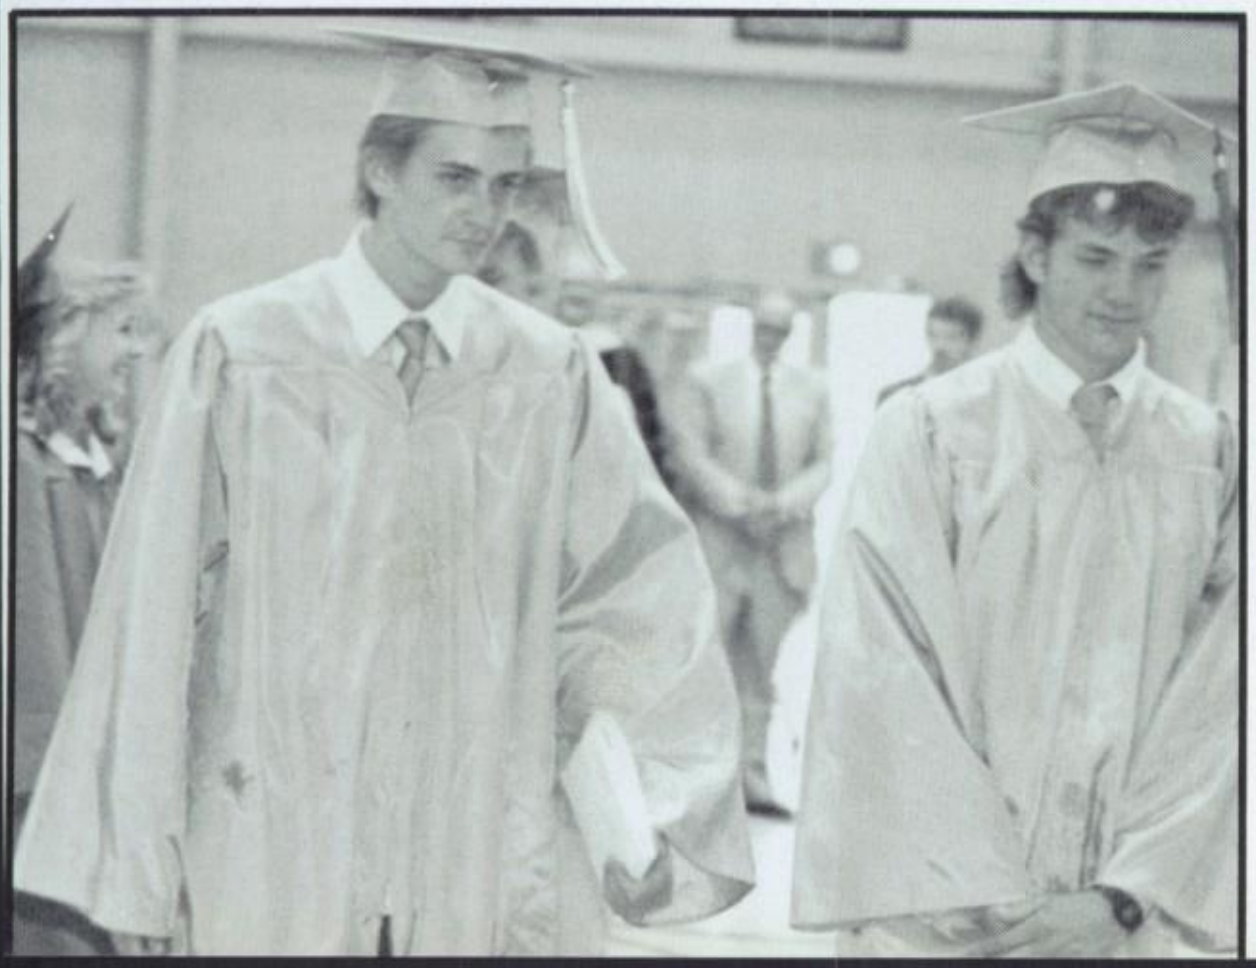
These graduates listen attentively to the words of Dr. Horn.

Corey Griffiths and Joan Becker give a good-bye wave from the receiving line.

Senior Kerri Russell sings a solo, "That's What Friends Are For".



The award and scholarship recipients pose for a picture following the presentation.



Trisha Holthaus and Butch Copeland were chosen by the graduates to lead them in.

Mark Becker and Myron Koch make a graceful exit with their diplomas.

Karla, Kerri, and Tricia try to give instructions to Mark, Rosemary, and Laura on how to draw the objects that Mrs. Buessing drew on the board.

Does this picture seem rather odd to you, or do the freshmen girls always smile this much? But then again, They probably came from the original funny farm!!

This surely can't be that "rowdy-man" Dan that we all know, can it?

The Final Countdown

When taken together as a whole, the stuff inside this book is the result of a school year of hard work. But even the hard work couldn't have been possible without the support of our community. Because of this support, the 1987-88 school year is preserved on the pages of this book for years to come.

If this book contained 500 pictures taken at a shutter speed of 1/125 of a second, only four seconds of the entire year would be recorded on its pages. But the picture above is worth a thousand words. We chose it for our closing page because we felt that it demonstrates the fact that we, especially the seniors, are all going somewhere. Even though we are now traveling a different route, we travelled together through our years of high school. We just hope that none of us end up using Corey's mode of transportation to get where we're going.

"Thanks" to everyone that contributed in any way to this book. Your support really counts!
